sole source justification for ATR-2 trailer from EEResQ

In April 2017 we purchased a ATR-2 trailer for EMS Patient transport and for remote area fire suppression using a CAFS-21 slip on unit manufactured by the same company. Through use this summer we learned that the slip on unit is to heavy for our firefighters to slip on and off to interchange with EMS patient carry transport. Thus we wish to purchase a second identical trailer and then configure 1 for EMS and 1 for firefighting and leave them in this configuration. We want the 2 trailers to be identical so that in the future if either becomes unusable ( ie;: flat tire) we can utilize the other with just a few minutes longer response time for the role needed to address whichever emergency we face at the time. Also the trailer needs to be designed to carry the CAFS-21 unit which we already have on hand. These trailers are designed for multiple purposes and we want to keep that flexibility since we never know which emergency response we will be facing. The slip unit also has specific weight and dimensional requirements which teh ATR-2 is designed for.
